LONDON OFFICE: 131, FLEET STREET, E.C.

HONGKONG, OCTOBER 11TH, 1904.

ONE of our recent correspondents has raised what would appear to be rather an important point for the consideration of our local legislators. He has an idea for an article which, he says, is largely used in Hongkong and the East, but for which there is no demand at Home. Wishing to obtain local protection, he now discovers that to get patent rights here he must first take out letters patent at Home. Besides the delay and the expense involved, he appears to think that a Home patent would be of no use to him. In yesterday's paper we published a letter from a lawyer confirming our impression that an exclusively local patent is unobtainable. Is not this an omission that ought to be rectified? True, it is not a provision likely to be in request with any great frequency; but it is quite conceivable that more than one local enterprise might be nipped in the bud for want of facilities for protection on the spot. The most productive patents are often simple little ideas that might occur to anyone, things that can be so cheaply made and sold that their value to the originator ceases altogether with the advent of competition.

That there is a need for some changes in the patent law at Home is plain. At present it is far too expensive, and far too intricate. Evasions are too easy and safe, even after the inventor has managed to secure legal recognition of his rights. Even the experts at Home make mistakes over and over again. On the subject of cost, there is a good deal of misunderstanding. A popular estimate is that it costs £50 to get a patent. We have seen it stated in a book of reference that the total fees amount to about £150. WHITAKER states that £1 is to be paid on application for provisional protection, and £3 on filing complete specification. After four years' protection, a certificate of renewal is necessary, and the fees run £5 for the fifth year, £6 for the sixth, and so on up to £14. After fourteen years, if the patentee shows that his invention, though of great public usefulness, has been unprofitable to himself, he may get extended protection. It seems anomalous that patents should, by the International Convention of 1884, be effective in all foreign countries (except Germany) and yet not cover our own Colonies.

Another anomaly becomes evident when our correspondent's position is considered. He has (he says) discovered some novel article that would be generally used throughout the East, but for which there is no use at Home. In order to obtain protection, he must prove its usefulness, novelty, and legality to the satisfaction of the Comptroller-General, the Chief Examiner, the Supervising Examiners, the Examiners, the Deputy Examiners, the Assistant Examiners, and all the other officials who do duty at the Patent Office, and who do not necessarily know what is novel or likely to be useful out here.

It is impossible not to feel sorry for the originator of any object of utility confronted by so many difficulties, and hindrances to the reaping of his just reward. It has not, so far as we know, ever been published yet how the real originator of the enamel letters for shop window advertisements failed to secure the remuneration due for his originality. He relied too much upon the so-called patent "agents," and frightened by the cost, went about trying to enlist a partner. The business man from whom we had the story was one thus approached. He pooh-poohed the idea, failing to foresee that these window signs would leap into such instant popularity. At any rate, within little more than a year after the inventor had exposed his idea, somebody with more money and foresight had annexed it, and has since made a fortune. Many a curious, and many a sad story, must be buried in the history of the Patent Office.

British warships in port are the Vengeance, Sirius, Rinaldo, Rosario and Alacrity.

The U.S.S. Helena, gunboat, Commander F. R. Sawyer, arrived from Canton yesterday, and anchored south of Stonecutters' Island.

M. de Plehve's assassin has escaped from prison in St. Petersburg, with the assistance of two nihilists disguised as gendarmes.

The Siam Observer reports that several automobiles are on board the German steamer Prinzess Alice, destined for Bangkok residents.

The transfer books of the Union Insurance Society of Canton, Ltd., closed yesterday to the 20th inst., the date fixed for the 31st ordinary yearly meeting.

His many friends will be pleased to hear that Mr. T. Whiteley Kew of Hongkong has successfully matriculated at the University of Harvard and has entered upon a study of dentistry.

Until the divorce suit of a Mr. and Mrs. Chapman is decided the Chicago courts have ordered, says the New York American, that the husband shall have sole possession of their house four days a week and the wife the other three.

The photographs of the Lilliputian Opera children, outside the Robinson Piano Co.'s window, have attracted such crowds as to block the footpath. Though the pictures have had to be moved, the Box office is still there. It opens this morning at ten o'clock.

M. Paul Brunat, to the great regret of his colleagues and the electors generally of the French Concession at Shanghai, has resigned the chairmanship of the French Municipal Council. He is succeeded in that onerous position by M. Henriot, Manager of the Banque de l'Indo-Chine at Shanghai.

It is a remarkable fact, said the Shanghai Mercury on October 6th, that this morning there was not one of Messrs. Butterfield and Swire's fleet of steamers in port. It is believed that this is the first time in twenty years that the harbour has been without a single steamer of this company being in port.

Through the absence from illness of Captain Jones the command of the Macao steamer Neuphan has devolved upon Captain J. Boardman, who as chief officer has always been popular with passengers on this run. Captain Jones, we are glad to learn, is making good progress towards recovery, and in all probability will be able to resume his duties in the course of a week or less.

While Hongkong last week continued free from plague, there were three cases of enteric fever to record, two Japanese cases imported from Canton and one Indian.

In the Hongkong Football Club's six-a-side competition at Happy Valley yesterday evening Kynrett's team beat Sandford's by four goals to one and Williams's team beat Annett's by three goals to nil.

Return of visitors to the City Hall Library and Museum for the week ending the 9th October, 1904, were 240 non-Chinese and 87 Chinese to the former, and 89 non-Chinese and 1,769 Chinese to the latter institution.

The Singapore Free Press has this comment: The Peking Court is reported to have engaged an American lady, Miss Mary Reynolds, to teach English to the Emperor's nephews and nieces. It would not be a bad idea to have also an English governess to teach American.

This item was telegraphed from Kuala Lumpur in Selangor to the Penang Gazette: Chief Interpreter Lim Teow Chang's son has cut off his queue. There is a possibility of others following his example immediately. Queue cutting is assuming a revival here.

At the Happy Valley last evening the final in the Civil Service Club Single Bowls was played off, the contestants being Mr. J. E. Brett and Mr. W. Brand. Mr. Brett played weekly at the start but showed fine form towards the end and came out winner with the score standing 21-13.

At the Supreme Court yesterday there were admitted to the Bar as solicitors by His Honour the Puisne Judge T. Sercombe Smith, Mr. Reginald Douglas Atkinson who joins Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon, and Mr. Clive Fletcher Dixon, who takes up duties in Mr. John Hastings's office.

When passing through P. R. last month Sir Thomas Sutherland, chairman of the P. and O. Company, stated that if the strike at Marseilles continues, his company will very regretfully be compelled to give up that port as a port of call and go to Genoa instead. All the mails from the East and the Far East were then reaching France through Brindisi and Modera.

Australia is becoming enthusiastic over cotton. The Labour Minister, Mr. J. C. Watson, thinks that the flax and cotton industries can be established there, as the new Queensland variety can be grown by white men and harvested in winter. The Manchester Cotton Spinners' Association is sending out expert workers with plant for experimental purposes on a test plantation.

According to the British Consular report on the trade of Yucatan, the importation of Chinese labourers for the hemp plantations there has proved highly successful. It is calculated that nearly 10,000 have entered the State of late, and it is probable that they will continue coming, as they earn good wages and are well treated. Their work, so far, has proved satisfactory, and if more come, as is most probable, immense advantage will accrue to the State in general, as one of its greatest difficulties has always been the scarcity of hands, as the ordinary immigrant cannot do the work required or stand the climate.

The Correspondent of the Malay Mail writes that the Poochow Chinese Agricultural Colony established in September of last year at Siliwayan, Lower Perak, shows very satisfactory growth. The Colonists, who for four or five months have occupied their own holdings and are living in very suitable houses built by themselves, seem to have every prospect of success. Their chief crop hitherto has been sweet potatoes. Not much of this produce has been sold in the markets, the producers preferring to use the tubers in fattening pigs. The fat and sleek animals are indeed a sure proof of the nourishing quality of these potatoes. A fine commencement has been made in planting Para rubber and coconuts, and for next year a good rice harvest is expected.

New brooms sweep clean—in China as well as other places. This has certainly been true of the new magistrate at Kiangyin, who has been in his present position about two months. He has risen from an insignificant military position through his shrewdness and cleanliness, so report says. The fear of man is apparently not before his eyes, as the following incident seems to prove. A sub-lieutenant was arrested for having a gambling and opium den in his place. The evidence was conclusive. After a stern rebuke magistrate Ching ordered the hopeful scholar to be beaten. The scholar protested, appealing to his literary attainments, naming his rank; for comfort he received the reply: "I am not beating your degree, but I am beating your rascality. Add one hundred blows."

The Siam Observer reports:—H. B. M. S. Rinaldo arrived at Bangkok from Singapore, and shortly before dusk dropped her anchor just below the British Legation landing. She made a somewhat hurried trip up in order to be here in time for H. M. the King's Birthday. At the Reception held at the Royal Palace her officers were presented to His Majesty by the British Acting Chargé de Affaires. Unless orders to the contrary are received in the interim, the Rinaldo will remain here until Monday next (Sept. 26th), when she will proceed to Hongkong to pay off her term of commission having expired. It is stated that another vessel of the same type, H. M. S. Epigée, is expected here within a day or so, and in that event Bangkok will have the unwelcome experience of two British war vessels in port at once.

The Chinese merchants are winding up their affairs, otherwise the life in the town is normal.

PORT ARTHUR.

CHIEFOO, 3rd October.

A native junk which left Yangchiang on the 1st October reports that though there was no big engagement from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. of the 29th September there was heavy cannonading going on and again from 7 p.m. of the 30th September to 8 a.m. of the 1st October artillery fire was heard, but only intermittently and not severe. As the supply of water from the reservoir near Poonlingshan to Port Arthur had been stopped the Russians are using water from wells, but these wells are shallow.

A native sampan man from Port Arthur, who has come to Chefoo by the same junk, says that about half a month ago, while the work of repairs of the Bayan was going on in the dock, a Japanese shell fell into the dock and 15 Russians and 14 natives were killed and wounded. After that the Bayan left the dock and the damage was repaired with tin plates. The Bayan is now anchored at the foot of the Golden Hill. The Pallada, Pobeda, Peresviet, Sesavskop, Poltava and two or three gunboats are anchored at the west of the Tiger Tail and there are eight torpedo-boats. The crews of these warships are still on board, and guns with large calibre on the stern are still on the warships, but the guns on both sides of the warships have been removed to the land forts.

Mr. G. C. Moxon seconded the motion, and it was carried unanimously.

ROYAL HONGKONG YACHT CLUB.

THE SEASON'S PROSPECTS.

In view of the opening cruise being fixed for the 29th inst., preparations are actively going forward getting the various yachts ready for the season's racing. Dione, going through a refit at the hands of the Hongkong & Whampoa Dock Co., is stretching her new suit of canvas which was made by Messrs. Ratsey & Laphorne. She has been seen in the harbour, under weigh, in the hands of Miss Stella May, the youngest member of the Club, but by no means the least experienced at the tiller. The new sails show a most artistic cut, and promise very favourably. Last year's champion, Vernon, has not been seen out yet. Her lug-sail was sent home to have some alterations made in it by Messrs. Ratsey and Laphorne. Till her owner's return, she is in charge of Mr. John Hastings; and in his experienced hands ought to give a very good account of herself. Elsbeth is to receive a new hollow yard from Mr. Holloway of Dublin, which should improve the stretch of her canvas. She is, we hear, to be sailed, till Mr. Tomes return at any rate, by Mr. A. B. Rouse, who sailed the Iris with such excellent judgment last season. The Aileen has reduced her ballast on the keel in order to increase her sail area. She is to receive a new lug sail, some 40 square feet larger than her last year's mainsail, from Messrs. Ratsey and Laphorne. This additional canvas ought to materially increase her speed. There are no other yachts in the first class, no new ones having been built for it.

Of the One-Design Class, the only yacht seen out is the Hon. H. E. Pollock's Colleen. She has a new suit of sails locally made, which she is busy stretching. No new yachts have been built for this class, nor have we heard of any change in ownership.

It is too early yet to say what yachts will compete in the Handicap Class, but they will probably be the same as last season.

We understand that the Commodore—Hon. F. H. May, C.M.G.—has offered a cup to be competed for by large cruisers. If this race fills it will make a revival of the racing of larger yachts, which used to be so popular here in days gone by.

A "DAILY MAIL" DISCOVERY.

A special correspondent of the Daily Mail at Johannesburg has the following extraordinary story:—

Another great waste of public money has been discovered in connection with a land settlement which has been financed by the Government to the extent of £300,000. Owing to financial difficulties the Government has taken steps to reconstruct the settlement. Among the few facts elicited are that the only security the Government has for its expenditure is 52,000 acres of land, valued at about £50,000, near Potchefstroom. Great reticence is maintained, but an official sent to cut down expenses and reconstruct the affair reduced wages from £3,000 to £1,000 per month in the first month. The poultry department, consisting of 200 fowls, had one poultry expert at £800 per annum, one assistant at £500, and one general farmer at £300—a total outlay of £1,600 per annum for caring for the welfare of 200 chickens. Further developments are expected.

The arrangements for military reliefs between home, the Colonies, Egypt, and India up to April were announced on 2nd inst. from the War Office. The Dileura, leaving Southampton on November 23, will take Nos. 87 and 88 Companies Royal Garrison Artillery from Ceylon to Hongkong, as well as drafts to Ceylon, Singapore, and Hongkong; and will also move Nos. 78 and 80 Companies Royal Garrison Artillery from Hongkong to Singapore, and Nos. 62 and 64 from Singapore to Bombay. The Arco, Bombay, will move the 2nd West Kent from Ceylon to Hongkong and Tientsin, the 1st Sherwood Foresters from Hongkong to Singapore, and the 1st Manchester from Singapore to Calcutta.

SUPREME COURT.

Monday, 10th October.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR T. SERCOMBE SMITH (PUISNE JUDGE.)

A PROMISSORY NOTE CASE.

Kwok Shut Ting sued the Yuen Ling firm for $532.90, being money due on a promissory note for $502.90, dated 11th March, 1904, and $30 lent by plaintiff to defendants on 9th May, 1904. Plaintiff also claimed interest until payment after judgment.

Mr. O. D. Thompson, solicitor, appeared for the plaintiff.

His Lordship, after hearing evidence, gave judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, 10th October.

BEFORE MR. J. H. KEMP (ACTING POLICE MAGISTRATE.)

ALLEGED HARBOURING.

Two women were charged with harbouring a girl under the age of 16 for unlawful purposes. Mr. Almeida Castro, solicitor, appeared for the defence. The case was remanded.

ALLEGED ARSON.

A man was charged with arson, in the case where bladders of kerosene were found on a heap of burning rubbish. The case was remanded.

A TAILOR'S BILL.

A Chinese sapper, attached to the garrison here, was charged with assaulting his tailor when the latter tried to collect a bill. Mr. O. D. Thompson prosecuted, and an officer watched the case on the other side. The defendant was fined $4.

ALLEGED MANSLAUGHTER.

The case of Thomas Hynes was further remanded.

BEFORE MR. E. D. C. WOLFE (ACTING SECOND MAGISTRATE.)

A SMALL OFFENDER.

A very tall Indian policeman charged a very small Chinese boy—a youngster of nine—with putting a stone in the tram track. The youngster was the son of a gentleman connected with the firm of the China Merchants. Even in his nine years he had learned to lie, and made a very plausible excuse. Mr. Wolfe tried to frighten him—a very difficult task—regarding the seriousness of his crime, and fined him $5.

ILLICIT OPTUM.

Two men were fined $200, and one $300, for unlawful possession of illicit opium.

ALLEGED LARCENY.

An Indian was charged with larceny from a Chinese woman, and with receiving stolen property. Mr. Stevenson, solicitor, appeared for the defence. The case was remanded, but being allowed in the sum of $250.

FALSE PRETENCES.

H. Ruttoje charged three street coolies with obtaining money by false pretences. They had been engaged to carry goods from the shop to a lady's house, and secured $2 payment from both ends. Three other men, also guilty of the same offence, were not to be found.

The defendants were each sentenced to three weeks' hard labour and two hours' stocks.

EXTRADITION.

The Chinaman required by the Foochow authorities, on a charge of larceny from a European, was sentenced to be sent to Victoria Gaol for 15 days, and then be handed over to the Chinese authorities. He could apply for a writ of habeas corpus if he liked.

PARIS.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

PARIS, 2nd September.

THE MARSEILLES STRIKE.

Only the most drastic measures can bring the Marseilles shipping strike to an end. M. Loubet, who came expressly from the South of France, where he had been enjoying a well-earned rest, to Paris last Monday to attend the Cabinet Council, is fully alive to the critical situation, which, far from ameliorating, is gradually getting worse each day. The Government has not been successful up to the present in restoring order; as the prolongation of the grève is completely ruining the trade of that port, the steps taken to put an end to the nuisance are none too severe. The dockers, who are a very determined body of men, have appealed to all the members of the Dockers' Federation of France to make common cause with them, and a general strike has in consequence been declared in ten of the Mediterranean ports, not only at home, but in Corsica and Algeria. The strike has next to completely paralysed industry, and the authorities, in viewing the outlook as of the gravest of the kind, do not at all attempt to minimize the actual state of affairs. Satisfactory arrangements are apparently out of the question; the men have made up their mind to create a general disturbance, bring commerce to a standstill—which they have practically done—and defy the Government. The docks are actually idle; more than eighty ships attached to the port are reported to be out of commission, while the crews, representing 6,000 men, have joined the unemployed. Another 8,000 men have been thrown out of work by the closing of shops owned by master millers. Like Corbeil, where the late M. Waldeck-Rousseau died recently, milling is one of the largest industries in Marseilles. The Minister of Commerce has written to all the mail steamship companies at Marseilles pointing out to them that they are bound by contract with the State and that they will be held responsible for their non-execution and fined 50 francs an hour for every hour the mails are delayed. The Government has been forced to use torpedo-boats to deliver letters to her adjoining African Colonies. The director of the Paris-Lyons and Mediterranean railway blames the Government for the present crisis; had the authorities shown themselves less lenient, there would have been no strike. This opinion is shared by many other people interested in the vexatious problem. If the Government is as much to blame as is stated, it is doing all it can to stop the strike—a very difficult task indeed. Shipping companies at Marseilles have dismissed their staffs, despite all the efforts made to prevent such a step being taken.

THE TAXIMETER.

Parisian cabs or cabmen have at last been hampered, and the taximeter has made its welcome appearance. There is not so much objection as was anticipated; it saves cab men from being swindled, and that is everything, while it enables passengers to see at a glance how much they have to pay. This saves useless discussion. Whether the taximeter has really come to stay or not cannot as yet be definitely affirmed; experiments will continue for another fortnight, only then will it be possible to decide as to its fate. The majority of cabs express themselves satisfied with the innovation, so do passengers: these are two good omens. The working of the taximeter is not what might be called complicated, though time must elapse before Parisians become familiar with it. For instance, hitherto, the course or drive, whether long or short, was charged at the fixed rate of fr. 50c. With the taximeter the minimum rate demanded is 75 centimes (100 centimes equal 1 franc), which entitles the occupant of the cab to travel three-quarters of a mile, at the end of which distance a dose visible to the passenger adds another two sous, giving the right to a further quarter of a mile. Two sous are added at the beginning of each quarter mile, so that when eight extra quarters have been travelled after the preliminary three-quarters, making altogether 23 miles, the sum of 1 franc 50 centimes is due. Thereafter, of course, the old tariff is exceeded, and this has led to murmurs on the part of those who would like to travel from one extremity of the city to the other for fr. 50c. as under the old system. Justice is due to the cabs, who have so long been imposed upon by exacting passengers; since the introduction of the taximeter it is no longer possible to cover say 61 miles for fr. 50c. This distance now costs double the amount plus one sou, be it 75 centimes for the first three-quarters of a mile, and two sous for each of the twenty-two quarter miles afterwards. When on the other hand a voiture is taken by the hour 75 centimes are charged for the first nine minutes, and two sous for every following three, making altogether about the equivalent of 2fr. 50c. per hour for the first hour, which is, however, reduced to the old tariff of 2fr. 05c. after the first hour has elapsed. So works the taximeter. Owners of cabs, however, and the men are at loggerheads, since a long time; the former have consented, as a temporary measure, to give the driver 25 per cent. of each day's takings instead of charging an established rate for the hire of the vehicle. Some say that the solution of the trouble—the heavy sums exacted from the men—has at length been found thanks to the taximeter. Other cabmen are preparing to defend their interests, believing that the companies will seek a means of reducing their share of the profits.

OYSTERS.

Epureans are positively delighted with the report of M. Alfred Giard, of the Institut, whose good words in favour of oysters have had the happy result of reassuring lovers of littres. The announcement could not have been made at a more propitious moment just when the season for eating the succulent bivalves had returned.

The arguments of M. Giard will set absurd rumours at rest; according to that "Immortel" oysters are never unhealthy, when bred under normal conditions; their microbic diseases, which are rare, are not transmissible to men; when dredged in the open sea and from natural banks oysters are never contaminated; the transmission of the typhoid bacillus by means of oysters is admitted to be possible, but only occurs in very exceptional circumstances; oyster beds are rarely insalubrious, but places which should be closely watched are the forwarding depots at the ports and the store-rooms of retailers—those of restaurateurs and street vendors above all. M. Giard, to whom sanitary inspectors ought to be obliged, concludes his observations by saying he wished there were no other cases of typhoid than those caused by the consumption of oysters.

UNHAPPY CHILDREN.

Colibri is a promising young lady of fourteen summers, who in the daytime assists her mother, who keeps a greengrocer's shop, but who at night believes in enjoying herself to her heart's content in the company of young men of her age. Two of these, Paul and Victor Lallemand, were deeply in love with Colibri. To put an end to the growing jealousy, the brothers agreed to fight a duel with knives in the presence of the object of their admiration; the braver of the two was to be entitled to the girl. The fierce encounter took place as agreed, and Colibri's presence lent encouragement. Paul suddenly rose triumphant, but very pale. He held in his hand a terrible knife covered with blood; at his feet lay his young brother Victor, a lifeless mass. Before Colibri had time to congratulate her lover, the police arrived, and while the remains of Victor were conveyed to the Morgue, the murderer and Colibri were marched off to the station.

POPULATION.

According to Dr. Bertillon there are in France 1.37 million bachelors above 30 years of age; 184 families without children; 2,63 with only one child; 2,36 with two; 1,58 with three; and 2,22 families with more than that number of offspring.

THE LATE CHARLES SARGENT.

Who is Charles Sargent, whose death has just taken place in this metropolis? Very few of the younger generation could answer this question. Deceased, who like thousands of others has passed away in obscurity and poverty though he fully deserved fame and riches, was no other than the inventor of the chevaux de bois or wooden horses of the roundabouts, which made and continue to make so many thousands of children and adults happy; by creating the bicycle chain M. Sargent also contributed largely towards the popularity of velocipedes. Twenty-seven years ago, the old man whose name is unknown to the general public of the present day was struck down with paralysis, and never recovered. What could be sadder than to have to sit all day long at the window, watching the phases of development of the bicycle, the benefit of which had been reaped by others, and to be completely ignored? Yet that was Sargent's fate for close upon thirty years. But there, "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." So Burns tells us.

THE CHURCH QUESTION.

As soon as Parliament meets again heated discussions are certain to take place over the Church question, which has once more come boldly to the front in a manner which M. Combes did not expect. The subject is much talked about by all classes, and everyone is awaiting with impatience the re-assembling of the Chambers. The table are now turned, as the Prime Minister suddenly perceived by the Bishop of Laval shipping off to Rome, instead of quietly remaining in his diocese in accordance with the injunctions of the Department of Public Worship. The march which M. Combes has taken later by surprise; the Prime Minister felt confident up to the last moment that the Bishop of Laval would not go to Rome, when called upon to do so by the Pope. His departure brings the number of vacant French sees to nine, and these cannot be filled without the approval of His Holiness. Were the French Government to designate clerics to occupy the episcopal palaces, and to draw the stipends allotted by the Treasury, it is more than doubtful whether clergymen could be found willing to obey. No bishop can exercise ecclesiastical functions without the sanction of the spiritual head of the Church. The Pope has scored on the present occasion, and the thought of this makes the Prime Minister naturally very angry; everyone was aware that the Holy See intended retaliating sooner or later. This has just been done with effect; M. Combes, who started the agitation, must now move again one way or the other and overcome the difficulty. What will the issue of the quarrel be? Separation of Church and State, or reconciliation of parties; these can be the only results, as the idea of the formation of a Gallican Church is quite out of the question. M. Combes and his faithfuls have lately been dreaming of constituting such a place of worship, free from obedience to the orders of the Vatican. Alas, the Prime Minister is doomed to be grievously disappointed in this respect as well as others. Those that maintained that M. Combes has gone too far in matters religious were not so wrong after all apparently.

PARIS AS A PORT.

Whether Marseilles as a commercial seaport will ever regain its proud position or not, Paris intends to make hay while the sun shines. To make Paris a seaport the same as London has long been the cherished dream of its citizens; strenuous efforts are now being made to go ahead with the scheme, since the capital, though situated so far from the sea, ranks next to Marseilles in point of importance. Industrial enterprise has achieved wonders in France already; the Seine is not the same river it used to be; it has undergone considerable improvements since recent years as regards rendering it more navigable. Not only has it been extensively and thoroughly dredged, but vast locks and weirs have been built enabling small vessels to come to Paris. Municipal engineers have been over to London recently, and drawn up encouraging reports. The building of additional quays, provided with powerful cranes, to say nothing of other accommodations the cost of half of which the City of Paris is prepared to meet, indicate that Paris is destined to become a seaport sooner than many expect. Never has the idea been so warmly supported by men of all shades of opinion.

The work done by M. Hugues Le Roux during his recent mission in Abyssinia is recognised as excellent by the authorities. France has had her eye on that part of the world since some years, her aim being to bring about the neutralisation of Abyssinia; this, if successful, would be another advance made in the way of the peaceful settlement of international difficulties. France, Italy and Great Britain are the three rival nations that are struggling for an entrance into Emperor Menelik's country. M. Roux, who has just returned from Africa, describes his journey on the whole as very pleasant—his audience with Emperor Menelik was very cordial. His object for calling on the Sovereign was to receive permission for the construction of a railway in his Empire. M. Roux, while expressing himself thoroughly satisfied with the results of his imperial interview, admits that he had many difficulties to overcome beforehand. His Majesty felt greatly inclined to withdraw all railway concessions, having been informed that the lines would be utilised more for political than for commercial purposes. This suspicion was allayed by M. Roux pointing out that the three nations already allied to were all on terms of friendship, and had recently signed treaties of arbitration. Proposals were submitted to Menelik to the effect that the whole of the Abyssinian railways, either under construction or projected, should be made international, and that ultimately Abyssinia should be considered as an entirely neutral country. This calmed the Emperor's anxiety, and matters are now on a fair way to success; the Abyssinian question is viewed in France as now practically settled, so far as the French are concerned, the which has given great satisfaction.

SHOOTING.

The opening of the shooting season has taken place under the most favorable auspices, the weather being splendid. The quantity of game received, however, up to the present at the Central Markets, in spite of the excellent reports from the various native preserves, is not equal to previous years. Prices, except for partridges, hares, and quails, are rather high. Belgium, Germany, Austria and Russia continue to send thousands of head.

JAPANESE AT WORK IN SIBERIA.

The first party of Japanese prisoners of war to the number of 256, including 68 officers, arrived at Pensa on 6th inst. Among them are four Englishmen who were captured at the sinking of the transports by the Vladivostok Squadron. The party left next day for Rjashak, in the government of Rjassan. An English lady living at Ekaterinburg, in Siberia, writes that Japanese wounded and prisoners are arriving there in large numbers. With the prisoners are many Japanese women, who are being sent up as servants by the European households while the men are being engaged by the tradespeople as porters and messengers. The Japanese prisoners are being distributed in all the large towns of Siberia, and their arrival in these sparsely populated districts is looked upon as a blessing. The Russian army in Manchuria is composed mostly of conscripts, who have been called to the colors from the rich agricultural districts of Siberia, so that the farmers and tradesmen, as well as the mill-owners and other employers of labour, have been left exceedingly short-handed. The hardy little Japs have, therefore, come at an opportune moment. They are a cheerful lot of men and have few complaints to make about their treatment by the Russians.

MARINE MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

Monday, 10th October.

BEFORE HON. CAPT. L. BARNES LAWRENCE R.N. (MARINE MAGISTRATE).

REFUSING TO STOP.

Inspector James Kerr, of the Water Police, charged Cheung Kam, master of the launch Lee Ping, with refusing to stop his launch when called upon to do so by an inspector of police.

Complainant, sworn, deposed that on the morning of the 9th inst. he was following the s.s. Doubron into the harbour up the Sulphur Channel. In the central fairway he saw the defendant's launch approach and follow the steamer. Shortly afterwards a sampan left the steamer's side, where she had been hanging on contrary to the regulations of the port, and made fast to the launch. Complainant blew the usual police blast for the defendant to stop. Instead of doing so, however, he ported his helm, sheered off, dropped the boat, and steamed to the Doubron. His object in stopping the launch was to take the number of the sampan. He was of the belief that the launch and sampan were acting in concert, as the custom was for the sampans to put touts on board steamers, and the launches afterwards to collect the passengers.

After further evidence the defendant was convicted. In summing up, Hon. Capt. Barnes-Lawrence said that the want of attention paid to the regulations of the harbour was very marked, and in order to ensure the same being properly safeguarded the water police must receive every support to which the law entitles them.

He fined the defendant $100 or one month's imprisonment.

ANOTHER CASE.

The same complainant charged three sampan masters with unlawfully making fast to the s.s. Doubron whilst under way within the waters of the Colony, without the permission of the master or officer in charge.

Complainant saw the boats hook on to the steamer, and the touts for baggage climb on board. The vessel was carrying Chinese passengers. The touts had been carrying on this habit for a long time, and for an equal period had been regarded by the masters of vessels as objectionable, interfering, as it did, with the navigation of the vessel, and creating confusion on board. The fines imposed so far had been ineffectual, and reflections had been made on the water police for permitting it to continue. Complainant took the three boats in tow, but was unable to get hold of any of the men who got on board. The boats were passenger sampans.

The men were convicted. In summing up Hon. Capt. Barnes-Lawrence said that these touts had become a nuisance to vessels visiting the port, and were alike a danger to navigation and a source of difficulty and annoyance on board both to passengers and crew. They showed a total disregard of the harbour regulations. The more generally this was known the better. He was determined to see the regulations properly carried into effect. He sentenced the first two defendants—holding licences—to fines of $50 each, or 14 days' imprisonment; and the other man, who only held a permit as preliminary to getting a licence, to a fine of $30 or seven days' imprisonment.

THE TIBETAN TREATY.

The text of the Anglo-Tibetan Treaty has been reported to the Peking Government by Yu Tai, the Imperial Chinese Resident at Lhasa, and the Waiwupu has wired Yu Tai to protest against the text of the Treaty. Yu Tai then wired and reported to the Waiwupu that though the Lhasa had consented to sign the treaty it had not actually been signed, and it was desired by the Imperial Chinese Resident that the Waiwupu should take steps to negotiate with the British Minister at Peking.

The Waiwupu, after receiving the text of the Tibetan treaty, was greatly surprised, and President Na Tung of the Waiwupu has interviewed President Sung Kwei of the Board of Works (who was Imperial Resident at Tibet from 1874 to 1884) and consulted about the matter. President Sung Kwei, contrary to the expectation of President Na Tung, told him that Tibet is a barren country and there is no vegetation, and when he was at Tibet as Imperial Resident he felt he had been banished at a military post road. Then Na Tung asked him if there were any mining products, and also if it had strategic importance, but Sung Kwei could not give any guiding answer. Thus Na Tung was greatly disappointed, and then went to see Tartar General Chang Keig who was Imperial Resident at Lhasa in 1888. Tartar General Chang Keig, though he stayed at Lhasa for only several months, yet he knew the place minutely. The Waiwupu intended to despatch the Tartar General to Lhasa, but he has declined the offer, saying that he has no experience in the matter of diplomatic negotiations, and thus Taotai Tong of Tientsin has been appointed to proceed to Tibet to negotiate the matter.

The Ministers for the United States, Italy and Germany, after reading the text of the Tibetan treaty, have protested against the treaty, and have informed the Waiwupu that in case China enters into a treaty with any power, there is a most favoured nation clause, but in the case of the Tibetan treaty there is no such clause, which means that Great Britain alone will enjoy the benefit of the treaty, and if China allows such a treaty all the powers will take steps to enforce their views against China, while if China does not consent to the treaty it means that Great Britain is the only power to say anything about it.—Universal Gazette.

British Steamship Haipang.—Fired upon in Port Arthur on her way from Ching-wan-tao; ordered to Dalny, and detained there four days (February 18).

British Steamship Hipsang.—Fired upon July 16 by Russian destroyer and sunk; according to the finding of the Naval Court held at Shanghai, August 23, "without any just cause or reason."

ENGLISH ADMIRAL'S VIEWS OF JAPAN'S NAVAL POWER.

Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge contributes to the Cornhill Magazine an article on "Naval Warfare Today: What Japan has Done."
The writer knows something about the Japanese.

From the class reared in the Samurai school
the officers of the modern Japanese army and navy are taken. I once, says Admiral Bridge, asked Count Katsura, the Prime Minister, and himself a distinguished soldier, if the officers were chosen solely from the gentry. He told me that though by law a commission was open to every Japanese, still, with few exceptions, officers belong to the educated classes. The mere numbers of the old Samurai class show that, in a country in which universal liability to serve is the rule, many must find their place in the ranks. Those who do so take service willingly. Every man of 50 grew to adolescence under the old feudal polity. Almost every father of a family in Japan must have been old enough to understand its principles before it was abolished. Nearly every admiral and general now serving had reached the military age under feudalism; some had gone through a campaign before it ended. It is no wonder that the old Samurai spirit predominates, not among the officers only, but also among the rank and file and on the lower deck. It is of special interest to us that a navy so officered and so manned is using in actual war the most modern naval appliances.

The general conclusion from the experience
already gained in the conflict in the Far East
may be said to be that in its principal features naval warfare does not differ materially from that of which we have authentic records. There has been nothing to show as yet that the slaughter will be more terrific than it used to be. Those who think that it will be would do well to examine the lists of the killed and wounded of the boatside in former days.
We knew before that the human element is the deciding element in war. This has not been revealed for the first time in the current struggle, though its truth has been accentuated.
If there has been heroic gallantry on one side,
there has been steady fortitude on the other;
and the balance has been upset by the superior intelligence and enterprise with which the Japanese have conducted their operations. The success with which they have kept efficient the complex machinery of modern man-of-war can only be attributed to unflagging care and a correct appreciation of the demands which can be reasonably made on a ship's mechanical equipment. Novel as present-day naval appliances are to the historic navies of the West, they must have been much more so to the Japanese, who so recently emerged from the seclusion of centuries. It is of the first importance to understand what has enabled our allies to triumph so completely over the difficulties arising from unfamiliarity. The reason will be found in the wide comprehensiveness of their culture. Admitting the necessity of special studies, they have remained the masters, and have not become the slaves, of specialisation. The narrow curricula of specialised branches have been kept subordinate to a general culture-imparting system of education. Chinese—as I heard that most eminent of authorities, our distinguished Minister at Peking, Sir Ernest Satow, once remark-
—is to the Japanese what Greek and Latin have been to the nations of the West. Almost all books are written in Chinese characters, with occasional addition of the native "kana."
The Chinese represent the chief ideas, names, and stems of verbs. To the same source they had to go for words to represent such new things and ideas as "telegraph," "photography,"
"democracy," &c. Instruction in every special subject is practically conveyed to them in the vehicle of a learned language.

ORIGIN OF PORT ARTHUR.

Paymaster-in-Chief W. Blakeney, R.N., F.R.G.S., gave a lecture at the Cambridge University Extension meeting at Exeter last month on "Some Personal Experiences of Exploration and Map-making on the Coast of the Pacific." The lecturer said that in 1856, immediately after the close of the Russian war,
the Government of England decided to send out an exploring ship to chart the then almost unknown coast of Manchuria. It was owing to the ignorance of England of the hydrography of that part of the seaboard of Asia that the Russian squadron, then out on the coast of the Pacific, escaped the grasp of the English ships sent out. The chart he had to go out to Japan, with a hundred years old. They knew nothing about Japan in those days. When he was on the China station he did not meet an officer who had seen, except at a distance, the coast of Japan. It was a sealed land to Western people. But they discovered that Russia had pushed Eastward and had obtained a port on the Pacific. The Russian officer forbade the English officers to survey the district. But the lecturer and another officer, at the command of the captain, pursued investigations. Their first acquaintance with Taitienwan Bay, then only known by name, was made under sealed orders.
That, therefore, was the beginning of their knowledge of the Yellow Sea, the Gulf of Pe-chili, and the entrance into the Gulf of Liao-tung. He (the lecturer) and one of his messmates were the first Western people to stand on the top of the Kwau peninsula. He made the original chart, which included Port Arthur, and he would tell them how it was that that port was so called. One of his messmates was named William Arthur. He was a honorary member of their mess. He commanded a little vessel called the Algerine, and when he (the lecturer) reported, after ascending the Kwang-tung peninsula, there was a small little harbour on the other side of the promontory, the Algerine was sent around there. A survey of the port was made, and when he came back the captain said, "I shall call that after you, Arthur," and turning to him (the lecturer),
said, "Mr. Blakeney, print the words 'Port Arthur' upon that chart." (Applause.) They were also the first to do to the city of Nienchwang. After the Treaty of Tientsin, in 1858, Lord Elgin, the British Ambassador to China,
resolved to go up the great Yangtze-Kiang River,
up which no foreign vessel had ever been beyond the city of Nankin, about 200 miles from the mouth. He (the lecturer) was sent with a Lieutenant up the river in a small vessel as an exploring party. During the journey the British vessels engaged a large number of Chinese rebels, some hundreds of whom must have been slain by our guns. Every bit of the chart of that river was made by himself, and was still used. After 600 miles they came to the city of Hankow, and when the inhabitants saw the first of Western nations come up their river in a steamer, they were so staggered and amazed that they came off in tens of thousands as the steamer anchored, and they might have walked on the heads of the Chinamen who had crowded around the vessel. (Laughter.) The lecturer was also one of the party which made a survey of the Canton river, and he subsequently took part in the explorations of the coast of British Columbia and New Zealand.
